Tips

When in the final position, the pin will lock the arm in place

To set your stands in the most stable position possible, make sure that when you set the hooks or bobbins you ensure the arms are pushed as far wide as they will go.

Castrol red rubber grease may weep out of your stands on the first few uses. This is normal! It should subside after the first few uses and continue to provide a good layer of lubrication. Keep the joints well lubricated (e.g. WD40).

Scotchbrite is good for polishing out any scratches and keeps your stands looking nice and shiny!
